SUBJECT: Comments on FY-87 New Initiatives

REFERENCE: New Initiatives Proposals for 1987 and your Note of 29 Jan

1. I have reviewed the Comptroller's package of New Initiatives for 1987. There are many good initiatives which deserve support but will not be funded. I am unable to provide an independent detailed ranking of the initiatives either within a Directorate or across Directorates. While realizing you did not ask for a reranking, some sense of priority may represent a useful input. In this regard the ranking as submitted seems generally correct, particularly for the DDA and the DDI. In the case of the DDO it is not clear that the specific initiatives within a given theme should enjoy the same priority as the overall theme or category. The following paragraphs provide comments on specific initiatives.

2. Two DA initiatives which deserve strong support are "Personal Security" and "Agency Responsiveness." These initiatives are justifiably ranked high by the DDA and if approved should improve personnel and security support to all Agency components.

3. The DA initiative "Agency Publishing Network" is of particular interest to FBIS. The Office of Logistics proposes an inter-directorate initiative to coordinate the acquisition of automated systems which prepare or create text and/or graphics. The emphasis appears to be on electrical interfaces with P&PD. Standardizing interfaces is quite worthwhile; however, this initiative should not assume any responsibility for FBIS Modernization or delay the planned Automation efforts.

5. The DI initiative "ADP Product Testing Facility" should be disapproved. This hobby shop approach smacks of capability looking for requirements. A better approach is to system engineer solutions in response to validated DI requirements.

Subject: 1987 New Initiatives

Attached are the new initiatives proposed by all directorates for 1987. Please provide comments about the other directorates' initiatives explaining your views about areas of commonality, which ones DDS&T should support strongly and which ones DDS&T should oppose strongly. We need your input by 7 February to prepare for the meeting with the Comptroller and the other Deputy Directors.
